«The Nuremberg trials: translation that changed people's lives»
April 16, 2020 at MSLU
(38/1 Ostozhenka Street, Moscow)

On April 16, 2020, the MSLU Faculty of Translation and Interpreting holds The International Scientific Conference and Workshop «The Nuremberg trials: translation that changed people's lives» to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the Victory in the Great Patriotic War.

The ultimate goal of the Nuremberg trials was to prevent universal-scale catastrophes, such as World War II, from happening in the history of humankind. Interpreters and translators played a vital role in the Nuremberg trials. The organizers and speakers of the conference aim to recall the hearings, emphasize the role of the interpreters and translators during the proceedings, the conditions they worked in and the impact they made on the course of the Nuremberg trials.

The conference program includes presentations by scholars, public and state figures, including foreign representatives, MSLU students and academics from other universities.
